SCHOOL LIBRARIANS LEAD

Learners demonstrate integrity in their use of information and ideas.

- Teach students about their responsibility to use information and ideas ethically and legally.
- Model and facilitate positive digital citizenship.
- Articulate critical aspects of information use, including privacy practices, intellectual freedom, and educational fair use.
- Implement organizational policies and practices related to censorship, materials challenges, library records, and responsible use of information sources.

TRANSFORMING LEARNING

The American Association of School Librarians (AASL) empowers leaders to transform teaching and learning. The Shared Foundations infographic set summarizes Competencies from the AASL Standards Framework for Learners and suggests some actions school librarians can take to get started with the standards.
